Shaw chosen as Edwardsville head

By Bonnie Gamble

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees named Kenneth A. Shaw president of the Edwardsville campus Tuesday.

Shaw, a native of Edwardsville, is an associate professor of sociology at Towson State University in Baltimore, Md. He has been vice president of academic affairs and dean of the university.

"I feel it's an honor and a tremendous professional opportunity," Shaw said Tuesday. He was in Edwardsville meeting various constituency groups on the campus.

Shaw, 37, succeeds John Rendleman who died March 4. Andrew J. Kochman and Ralph W. Ruffner were acting presidents in the interim. Over 200 applicants were reviewed for the position.

Shaw said his duties will begin Jan. 17. A bachelor, Shaw will be paid $48,000 annually and will live in the president's official residence.

Ivan A. Elliott Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees, said he was "just delighted" with Shaw's selection. "The president of Towson said he (Shaw) was the best university administrator he had ever met," Elliott said.

Shaw will be granted tenure as a sociology professor in the School of Social Sciences.

The new president said he plans to work with the community in identifying problems which exist and with the academic community in determining which problems have the highest priority and how they should be resolved.

Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Shaw live in Edwardsville.

SIU Board Staff called go-between

By Bonnie Gamble
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

James M. Brown, general secretary of the SIU System, told Faculty Senate members Tuesday that his office acts as a go-between for the system and the state.

In detailing 33 activities of the board staff, Brown said, multiple institutions in a system, a board staff has been called in almost routinely to coordinate its efforts," he said. The SIU System includes the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses and the Board of Trustees.

The office of the Board staff was created in 1970. In detailing expenditures of the office, Brown said that each year his office has spent less money than had been allocated. The funds were then transferred back to the two campuses Brown said. "We have actually managed to benefit the institution materially," he said.

"Whatever we have left that's available (this year) will go to Edwardsville," Brown said.

Brown defended salary increases for the board staff. Of $13,200 available for salary increases, $11,400 was used. He said salaries were raised two and a half per cent.

In response to questions, Brown said he personally felt SIU would be better off to return to a more centralized system. He said too often the two campuses have worked separately and that collective strength is needed.

The role of the board staff, Brown said, is advising the board on decisions and helping it to live with those decisions. The board staff also advises the board on activities pertaining to each campus.

"We serve an advisory role. We tell them where the problems are, and sometimes they ask us for recommendations," Brown said.

Brown emphasized that the board is a "creature of the state." "Our primary responsibility is to the cause of higher education generally and to SIU specifically," Brown said.

Shouldering the load of explaining the SIU Office of the Board Staff to Faculty Senate members, James M. Brown describes his role as general secretary for the intrasystem administrative unit. He told the senators Tuesday his board staff coordinates the activities of the three SIU System entities: SIU-C, SIU-E and the Board of Trustees, and acts as a go-between for the system and state government. ## Senate calls for spring referendum

Faculty vote on bargaining scheduled

By Joel Spenner
Student Writer

The Faculty Senate voted Tuesday to hold a faculty-wide referendum on collective bargaining in the spring.

The Faculty Senate voted to hold the referendum upon the recommendation of its Faculty Status and Welfare Committee. The committee had earlier been asked by Herbert Donovan, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT), to sponsor the referendum.

The faculty voted to have David Bateman, vice-president of the Faculty Senate, prepare the ballot so that the total count would reflect academic constituencies, academic rank, tenured and non-tenured faculty, full and part-time faculty, and term and continuing contract faculty, with careful note given to those voting no opinion or not voting.

John Jackson, president of the Faculty Senate, said the results "will provide some fodder for whoever wins the referendum."

"I think that in the past, too many people have attempted to speak on how the faculty feel about collective bargaining, and I hope this referendum will settle the matter," said Jackson.

The resolution also states that the results will be forwarded to the Board of Trustees through appropriate channels for its response.

According to the resolution, a majority of the faculty who voted in a similar referendum in the spring of 1976, voted in favor of collective bargaining at SIU-C. The resolution also states that "collective bargaining appears to be an increasingly common method used by college faculties to gain economic security."

The Faculty Senate also voted to urge the Board of Trustees to reinstate six-month sabbatical leaves for the faculty at SIU-C, similar to the sabbatical leave policy at SIU-Edwardsville.

Prior to 1974, when SIU-C went to the semester system, sabbatical leaves could be for two quarters or six months at full pay or four quarters or one year at half pay.

Under the current semester system, sabbatical leaves are for one semester or 4½ months at full pay, or two semesters or nine months at half pay.

James A. Tweedy, associate vice-president for academic affairs, argued before the Faculty Senate that allowing six-month sabbatical leaves with pay would result in increased teaching loads on the faculty. He said that each college would not be able to hire replacements for the faculty on leave because of budget constraints.

Jackson said the Board of Trustees is scheduled to consider an interim sabbatical policy for SIU-C at its December meeting which would reaffirm the present policy.

Jackson said the Faculty Senate plans to oppose the present policy because "in too many cases, 4½ months is just not long enough."

Jackson said former Vice President Willis Malone had promised the faculty that the changeover would not disadvantage them. "But I think the faculty got rooked on the matter," said Jackson.

An ad-hoc committee was also appointed to review the faculty grievance document. Those appointed were Pat Carrell and Ned McGlynn, members of the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee, David Bateman, vice president of the Faculty Senate, and John Jackson, president of the Faculty Senate.

Polling places

Polling places for Wednesday's Student Senate elections open at 8 a.m. and closes at 6 p.m. Polls are located in the Communications Building, Home Economics Building, Morris Library, Student Center, Technology Building A, Wham Building, Grinnell, Lentz, and Trueblood Halls. Students must show an ID and a paid fall fee statement to vote.

'High-risk' students to get swine flu shots

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU students considered to be in a high risk category will probably receive swine flu shots by the end of November, but Health Service officials do not know when the vaccine will be available to the general public.

Dr. Don Knapp, Health Service, medical director, said Tuesday that swine flu shots will be given at the Health Service to quadriplegics; paraplegic; individuals with chronic debilitating illnesses such as diabetes, a history of cardiovascular disease with previous myocardial infarct (heart attack) or stroke; and individuals with chronic neurological diseases or chronic diseases of other organ systems such as lower respiratory, liver or kidney as soon as the Health Service receives the bivalent vaccine. Bivalent vaccine is used to immunize the elderly and persons with serious chronic diseases.

Knapp said that if the monovalent vaccine (vaccine used for the general public) does not arrive at SIU by Dec. 6, the Health Service will not hold an immunization clinic in the Student Center.

If the vaccine arrives after Dec. 6 it will be so close to the end of the semester that it would be more practical for students to get the shots when they go home, Knapp said.

"The rest of SIU's swine flu program is still very much up in the air like the political football this whole program has become," Knapp said. "Something that could have been taken care of by medicine on a private basis is still uncertain because of government intervention."

Charles Courier, immunization representative for Region 5 of the Illinois Department of Public Health in Marion, said Tuesday that 64,000 doses of bivalent vaccine arrived in Marion Monday. He said he is expecting an additional 62,000 doses this week.

The bivalent vaccine will be administered to anyone 60 years old and older and to those in a high risk category by Nov. 30, Courier said.

Courier said the only word he has received on the monovalent vaccine is that it will arrive soon after the bivalent. "I couldn't say what they mean by soon," he added.

Knapp said he is concerned that Jackson County has not received any swine flu vaccine yet. "If there is an epidemic sooner than one month after the vaccine is administered it is very questionable that the vaccine will be of any significant protective value," Knapp said.

Cultural Affairs head resigns from SGAC

By Melissa Malkovich
Entertainment Editor

Lee Tews has resigned as chairperson of the Cultural Affairs Committee of the Student Government Activities Council (SGAS) in the wake of a concert by a Georgia-based musical group which left Shryock Auditorium damaged.

Tews, a senior in journalism, served four semesters as head of the committee, which books entertainment with student fee financing.

Tews was unavailable for comment Tuesday, but Toby Peters, chairperson of SGAS, said Tews resigned "for personal reasons." Peters said Tews resigned verbally Tuesday afternoon.

"It's unfortunate that he had to resign because Lee is a very talented individual, a good promoter and has brought some excellent programs to SIU," Peters said.

The Cultural Affairs Committee sponsored the Atlanta Rhythm Section concert at Shryock Saturday night.

Jo Mack Witwer, auditorium manager, said the performers damaged a wall, parts of the proscenium and that "more than the usual number of seats" were damaged by cigarette burns during the concert. She said there had also been drinking in the auditorium.

While Witwer stressed that Shryock is not complaining and SGAC fees will pay for the damage, she added that it is the management's responsibility not to allow smoking or drinking.

"There are reasons for the rules. We expect a lot of building usage, but we're concerned about the protection of the audience," Witwer said.

Witwer said she is not recommending that non-student oriented shows be restricted to Shryock.

Peters said the Cultural Affairs Committee will begin negotiating for "other places like Shryock for concerts to be held, depending on the group."

Peters further stated that damage done was caused by "lack of cooperation in some areas with the performers." He said conditions resulting in Saturday's damage will be improved in future concerts.

The committee will begin a search for a new chairperson. Peters urged interested person to contact him at his office on the third floor of the Student Center.

News Roundup

Nine Argentine leftists dead after army battle

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—About 40 suspected left-wing guerrillas stormed a police station near La Plata before dawn Tuesday and nine of them died in the ensuing battle with police and army troops, security sources said. Four policemen were reported wounded. The reported assault, launched in the face of a determined effort by the military government to wipe out leftist guerrillas, indicates the guerrillas are still far from liquidated.

Rhodesia said to have Mozambique army base

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP)—Mozambique claimed on Tuesday that guerrilla-hunting Rhodesian using jets, bombers and helicopters had crossed the border and attacked an army base. There was no comment on the report from Rhodesian officials. Rhodesia has acknowledged making at least 12 previous raids across the border to attack the camps of black nationalist guerrillas who are fighting to topple the white minority regime in Salisbury, Mozambique, along with several other black African nations, provide refuge and aid to the guerrillas.

A communique from the Mozambique Information Agency (AIM) issued here said the attack on the base near the Rhodesian border began last Thursday. The agency said the Rhodesians quickly occupied the base, but that fighting continued until Monday, when the government last received a report from the area. AIM said that "a total of 20 aircraft took part, attacking from four directions." After prolonged bombing the enemy dropped paratroopers and helicopter troops, some of whom were hit in the air by the Mozambique People's Liberation Forces," the agency said. It claimed seven Rhodesian planes were shot down.

Quebec separatist party wins referendum vote

MONTREAL (AP)—Speculation and concern about the future of Canada swept the country Tuesday after the election victory of the pro-separatist Parti Quebecois in Quebec provincial elections. A number of politicians and business leaders called for a quick referendum on independence the French-speaking province to get the question settled. Others said the Quebec electorate had merely been turning out a government they didn't like rather than voting for independence.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau told the Parliament in Ottawa that the federal government will not negotiate any form of separation with Quebec or any other province but offered to have an early meeting with Rene Levesque, the 54-year-old Parti Quebecois leader and future premier. "We have only one mandate," Trudeau declared. "That is to govern the whole country." Levesque has promised a referendum on secession within two years. Though once considered a radical, Levesque assured Canadians that there will be "no Berlin Wall on the Ottawa River" and generally campaigned on the alleged economic failures of Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberal government.

Death row prisoner, girlfriend try suicide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Gary Mark Gilmore, whose wish to die before a firing squad has been delayed by a reprieve, and his girlfriend were found unconscious Tuesday in an apparent suicide pact. Authorities said they believed both had taken drug overdoses. "He tried to take his own life," prison medical technician Tom Anguay said of Gilmore. "He tried to OD."

Gilmore, who has contended he prefers death to languishing in prison and asked a court to disregard appeals on his behalf, was rushed from the Utah State Prison to the University of Utah Medical Center. His condition was listed as serious, but hospital spokesman John Keahey said it was believed Gilmore would pull through. Nicole Barrett, 20, was in a coma and in critical condition at Utah Valley Hospital in Provo, 40 miles to the south, hospital officials said. She was rushed there at 9:13 a.m. after being found in her apartment in Springville. The development came one day before Gilmore was scheduled to appear before the Utah Board of Pardons for a decision on whether it would commute his death sentence to a lesser penalty.

Council gets development list citing crucial needs for C'dale

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An increase in jobs and job opportunities for low and moderate income persons, the development and implementation of a housing plan and the improvement of the city's streets are among the critical needs for Carbondale, a memo from the Community Development Steering Committee says.

The memo, written after a series of public hearings and advice from the Community Development Division, was presented to the City Council Monday.

After final statement of needs for Carbondale is drawn up and approved by the council, the city administration will apply to the federal government for next year's expected $2.5 million Community Development Block Grant.

Federal guidelines allow the city to use the block grant for street construction; code enforcement, housing rehabilitation; social services, such as those concerned with employment; child care; drug abuse or welfare; sewer and water line improvements; and public land acquisition.

Don Monty, assistant director of the Community Development Division, said the grant is part of an on-going three-year program. He said the city received $2.9 million a year ago and $2.7 million this year.

On the list of critical needs the memo called for is a continued and strengthened health system for low and moderate income persons, a plan to implement ways and means to continue the city's role as an economic growth center, expanded code enforcement, expanded child care programs, equal opportunity through affirmative action, an immediate interim railroad crossing at Hickory Street and the improvement of downtown Carbondale.

The Community Development Division disagrees with some of the proposals included in the memo, such as the listing of the proposed Hickory Street railroad crossing as critical.

Monty said the staff opposed listing that project as critical because it is duplicated under the proposal to develop a comprehensive growth plan for the city and that it might interfere with the railroad depression project.

The city's serious needs, according to the memo, are the continuance of education programs on money and housing management, continued expansion of senior citizens programs, facilities and programs for the handicapped, a comprehensive growth plan for the city, continued social services, the maintenance of data on the city's housing needs, youth programs, safety programs, storm warning systems and some type of public transportation, among other things.

The important needs are listed as the development of a county-wide drug abuse program, equitable assessment of real estate taxes, recreational programs, public parking and additional public facilities such as a new library.

Less important needs are alley improvements, underground wiring and public drinking fountains.

Man pleads discrimination; hearing set

By H.B. Koplowitz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Carbondale man who says he was denied a job with the Jackson County Ambulance Service because of his race is scheduled to present his case Friday before the legislative committee of the Jackson County Board.

A hearing has been scheduled to determine whether Cameron Browne, 517 E. Fischer St., was discriminated against by the supervisor of the ambulance service and whether the service is following Affirmative Action guidelines in its hiring and firing practices.

Browne, brought the charge to Jackson County Board member Walter Robinson after being denied a job by Frosty Cummings, supervisor of the ambulance service. Browne, who is black, worked for the service when it was run by SIU. Currently there are no black ambulance drivers employed by the service.

According to Cummings, Browne was not rehired when the service was transferred to the county because Browne performed "an inadequate job" for the SIU ambulance service.

Robinson said the fundamental question is whether Browne was fired or not rehired. If Browne was fired the ambulance service failed to follow the county's personnel policy by not giving Browne 30-days notice, Robinson said.

If he was not rehired, the service failed to follow Affirmative Action guidelines by not advertising the ambulance driver jobs, Robinson added.

"It's easy to say the man isn't doing his job," said Robinson. "But are you following Affirmative Action? I'd just like to see some written evaluations of his performance, and find out what the evaluations are based on. There has been no written evaluation up to now."

Robinson said he sees two issues in question. One is whether racial bias had anything to do with Browne not being hired. The other is whether the ambulance service has an equal opportunity employment policy and is following Affirmative Action guidelines.

Cummings said Browne was not hired and not fired. He said he made it clear to all ambulance drivers that they would have to reapply for their jobs when the county took over the service Nov. 1. He said all drivers were required to fill out applications. Following a six-month probationary period, he said, employees will be re-evaluated.

Cummings said he was aware and sensitive to Affirmative Action guidelines when he was named supervisor of the service in October. He said that sometime in mid-October a job description and announcement of job openings was placed with the Illinois State Employment Agency.

Cummings said SIU drivers were given the jobs before new applicants were considered. But he noted that only one application was received, and that the ambulance service "has to have trained people in it." Cummings said the drivers who had worked with SIU "knew the setup and the system."

"The ambulance crew was able to tell me specific instances that raised questions as to Browne's capabilities," Cummings said. Cummings said such incidents were "numerous."

Cummings said Browne had apparently "made some mistakes in tight situations."

Cummings discounted an allegation made by Robinson that Browne was fired because of personality conflicts with the crew. Cummings said he was aware of the conflicts but that in making his evaluation he "overlooked the personality problems."

Drainage hazards targeted

$1.8 million project up for vote

By Scott Singleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council is scheduled to decide Monday whether to accept plans for a project that city officials say would reduce storm drainage problems and flood water hazards while preserving the area's natural drainage system.

The Drainways-Greenways project would take about 20 years to complete, cost about $1.8 million and encompass 706 acres, according to L.S. Bruno, Drainways-Greenways project manager from the Carbondale Planning Commission. The Drainways-Greenways project would use the natural drainage system of surface water, water courses, flood plains, steep slope and wooded areas in controlling the water runoff rate and releasing accumulated storm water over an extended time.

By using the natural drainage system and detaining the storm water runoff close to where it falls, the Drainways-Greenways project would reduce the need for downstream engineering facilities to prevent flood damage.

Bruno said the project would be "an open space network of natural features" providing for the multiple use of land not suitable for urban development. The land could be used for conservation, recreation and agriculture in addition to providing drainage improvements.

Because of forest areas' value in reducing runoff and erosion, and as a habitat for wildlife, 230 acres have been designated as forest preserves in the city. Three areas, Pyles Fork Preserve, University City Woods and Snyder Hill Slopes are planned for the east side. City Reservoir Preserve, Greater Hunter Woods and Parrish Norwood Preserve are planned for the west side.

To provide an alternative urban transportation system, 33 miles of no auto ways (for bicycles, pedestrians and wheelchairs) are included in the Drainways-Greenways plan. The non-auto routes would generally follow drainage easements, floodplains, and in developed areas, alleyways.

The routes would include: town central (the corner of Main Street and Illinois Avenue) to the Eurma C. Hayes Center; Eurma C. Hayes Center to University City; University Park to University Mall; Lakeland School to University Mall; Brookside Manor to Southgate; South U.S. 51 to SIU; SIU to Murdale; Evergreen to West Town; North U.S. 51 to the West Main Street strip; Oakland House to town central; and an interurban grid of Poplar, Mill, Walnut and Oak streets.

Another part of the multiple use plan is a system of urban parks. Of the proposed 3 acres of parks, some would be in areas with poor drainage conditions that not are suitable for residential development. Other parks would occupy vacant floodplain areas.

The city's Planning Commission has proposed development of a short segment on Pyles Fork Creek under the Drainways-Greenways plan between Grand Avenue and College Street for the next fiscal year. The money would come from Community Development Block Grant Funds.

Bruno said there is $20,000 in the capital improvements budget for appraisals of the approximately 20 acres in the Pyles Fork Creek area. The proposed development would cost about $52,000, Bruno said on Tuesday.

Loser's campaign momentum highly overrated

By Garry Wills

We are already hearing the perennial loser's claim that he would have won if ... If this or that; but, typically, if the campaign had run a little longer. The loser was gaining, and just needed that few extra days to overtake the winner.

This is understandable as part of the alleviation mechanism adopted to fight a letdown after so great an effort. It helps the loser to tell himself that nothing he did caused the loss—external circumstances were just insuperable. He was doing all the right things; he just needed a little more time.

This self-protective ploy is understandable in the loser and his workers. But it has crept, also, into analyses and the popular lore on elections. It is often said, now, that Humphrey would have beaten Nixon in 1968 if the election had run a week or two longer.

There is a fundamental error in such claims. They normally take a rate at which the gap is closing and extrapolate from it a continuing motion that would go right through the election date. There are many things wrong with such an analysis.

The gap between candidates always tends to narrow toward the end of a campaign. Those holding back or considering a third alternative finally realize that the only real choice is between two major candidates. Some "go home" to their party; some listen to the assuaging rhetoric of the candidates. Differences come less pronounced. The rate of change is geared to the election date, and cannot be projected beyond it.

Much of the early talk about voting is just that—talk. This is true of most "protest" votes. In 1968, George Wallace got as high as a quarter of the vote in early polls. But by election time that number had shrunk to roughly half. There is a difference between the talk-vote and the cast-vote.

But that difference does not register until the actual voting time draws near. Everything is geared to that reality-point. The shifts that are going to take place occur in relation to it. That is why we cannot take the narrowing-down to this reality-point as if it were a process caught at some midpoint, a process for which we can imagine a hypothetical conclusion. The election is the conclusion. No matter when it is held, so long as it is preannounced, the shifts and adjustments will all be targeted toward it.

Going into the ballot booth is not quite like climbing the hangman's scaffold, but it has something like the same effect, as described by Dr. Johnson: It wonderfully concentrates the mind. If the election were announced for a week later, the same forces of concentration would just be put off for a week, and the same narrowing down would then take place.

In 1968, labor activists turned out the normal Democratic vote that had been flirting with the idea of voting for Wallace. The close conclusion of that race did not come about because Nixon was losing any of his support. Humphrey just inherited, at the last minute, twelve or thirteen percentage points of the "talk-vote" for Wallace. The big push would have come later, and had the same results, if the election had been held a little later.

Actually, Ford's supporters have even less excuse than Humphrey's for claiming he could have won if the race had gone longer. Ford quite early closed the artificial gap caused by the old momentum, near the Democratic convention, when Carter held both the "protest" talk-vote and the partisan casting-vote. He was a new face, an outsider, "anti-Washington." He also presided over a restored party, and was its official candidate. He had the equivalent of Wallace's early polls in 1968 combined with Nixon's.

That kind of euphoric lead was bound to melt, and rapidly did. But the very last-minute decisions being made at the polls broke heavily for Carter, according to the NBC polls. What happened was this: Both sides of the artificial constituency giving Carter a 3 per cent lead on Ford came to have doubts about him, from the very nature of their juxtaposition with each other. The "protest" types wondered at Carter's dealings with the Daleys of this world. The party types wondered at his loner ways and unconventionalities.

In the end, however, enough of these came back to him to give him the edge. And I think it was the partisans who hesitated longest and yet came round. Carter won by a party vote, the majority Democrats deciding they needed to join their control of Congress and the state houses to a restored Democratic presidency.

Parent training courses: Equal treatment for all

By Arthur Hoppe

Good news! The magazine Psychology Today reports that commerial parent-training courses are "growing by leaps and bounds" these days.

It's about time. For millions of years untrained parents have been raising their children without knowing how to do it. All they knew how to do was yell and scream and belt them one occasionally. No wonder things are in such a mess.

But now, says the magazine, hundreds of thousands of untrained parents have already learned how to raise their children. The article, entitled "It Changed My Life," examines four new programs in this burgeoning field. And they sure changed the life of Milton Haberdash.

Haberdash used to be one of your ordinary, run-of-the-mill, yelling, shouting, belting parents until he underwent Parent Effectiveness Training, the Parent Improvement Program, the Responsive Parent Training Program and a study group in Children: The Challenge.

Like any well-trained parent, the all-new Haberdash exhibited delight on bumping into his ten-year-old son, Irwin, outside Irwin's school.

"Good morning, Irwin," he said, extending his hand and tipping his hat. "I say this as all my instructors inform me I must stop treating you like a puppy being housebroken and start treating you with the respect and courtesy I accord other adults."

"Oh," said Irwin. "It's you."

"Let us talk about topics of mutual interest in order to establish and maintain a helping relationship," said Haberdash. "What are you doing?"

"I'm setting fire to the school," said Irwin. "I won't ask you why because that would invite you to blame others, offer excuses and dwell on feelings, rather than behavior," said Haberdash. "Instead, I will merely be prepared to extend my aid if needed."

"Okay," said Irwin. "Got a match?" "But in a friendly, nonjudgmental way, let me suggest that you evaluate your behavior yourself," said Haberdash. "Is what you are doing helpful to you?"

"Yeah," said Irwin. "It'll help keep me from flunking today's quiz in Interpersonal Relationships."

"Let me assist you in constructing more responsible behavior," said Haberdash. "Without my experienced counsel, your plan will be too ambitious. You need smaller, more realistic goals so you can make progress and enjoy success."

"Okay," said Irwin. "I won't set fire to the school. I'll just burn down the Interpersonal Relationships classroom."

"Allow me to reward your good thinking with high praise," said Haberdash. "And should your plan fail, rest assured I won't punish you as punishment causes loneliness, isolation and hostility."

"Swell," said Irwin. "Where's the match?"

"First, in order to strengthen your motivation and increase your involvement with me as your parent, I'd like you to make a solemn commitment to your plan," said Haberdash. "Which would you prefer, a handshake, a verbal agreement or this written contract?"

"Where do I sign?" said Irwin. "Now, do I get the match?"

"No, in treating you as I would any other mature adult," said Haberdash, examining the document, "I'll see that you get one-to-ten for attempted arson. Officers, do your duty!"

"You rotten fink!" yelled Irwin, taking a wild swing at his father as he was dragged away kicking and shouting. Haberdash watched him go with some apprehension.

"I'm delighted they've trained us parents to treat our children with the respect and courtesy we accord other adults," he said with a frown. "But now who's going to train our children: not to treat us like puppies being housebroken?"

Letters

Death penalty column contained details in poor taste

In view of your letters' policy of not publishing letters in "poor taste," I am somewhat aggrieved by Robert Wren's editorial on capital punishment. If we are to nationally televise executions, replete with the gruesome sensory effects so colorfully described by Mr. Wren, in order to "get a true reading of what the American people REALLY think of the death penalty," let us also televise re-enactments of the murders for which these men or women were convicted. Show us the victim's pleas and physical suffering, the murderers callous disregard for human life, the carnage, the absolute and total waste (I needn't provide detail as per Mr. Wren). Show us the heartbreak, the mental anguish, the loss and confusion of the victim's family. Show us "rehabilitated" convicted murderers, released on probation after serving seven-year prison sentences, free to snuff out other human lives, victims of society's desire not to inflict "cruel and unusual punishment" upon the wasters of human life. With these revisions to your proposed TV spectacular, Mr. Wren, I will gladly accept your theory on getting "...a true reading..."

As a final comment on Mr. Wren's editorial, I would suggest that the next time he opts for "not even going to take a position on the matter" or for not citing "arguments for and against," he should not state the pros when he does not state the cons.

Administrator praises Memorial Hospital facilities

Mr. Koplowitz:

In reference to your article of Nov. 10 on your experience in Memorial Hospital's Emergency Department, I am very pleased that you considered your service here satisfactory. I hope also that you realize that upon entering the emergency room and being examined and treated by a physician, that you are experiencing something unusual to the Southern Illinois area.

Memorial Hospital is the only hospital in the area to service its community with a physician on duty in the emergency room, along with the finest trauma nursing staff and support personnel. The hospital and the local medical community feel a strong responsibility to the community and the University, to see that adequate emergency medical service is provided. Not to be melodramatic, but trauma and medical emergencies are by their very nature, very dramatic. By the fact that Memorial Hospital is serving the community in this way, many lives have been saved.

You also made mention of a phenomenon which is becoming more pronounced in community hospitals across the nation, medical education. For too long medical education, the resident and the medical student were confined to public and university hospital charity wards; now, that is changing and it will produce a better experience for the future physician and better medicine for the patient.

I sincerely hope you can handle all of life's trauma as well as you seem to have handled this one.

George Maroney, Administrator
Memorial Hospital of Carbondale

Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIAL POLICY—The general policy of the Daily Egyptian is to provide an open forum for discussion of issues and ideas. Opinions expressed on the editorial pages do not necessarily reflect those of the administration or any department of the University. Signed editorials represent the opinions of the editors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, which is composed of the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a member elected by the student news staff, the managing editor and an editorial writing instructor.

LETTERS POLICY—Letters to the editor are invited and writers may submit them by mail or in person to Editorial Page Editor, Daily Egyptian, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and should not exceed 250 words. Letters which the editors consider libelous or in poor taste will not be published. All letters must be signed by the authors. Students must identify themselves by classification and major, faculty members by department and rank, non-academic staff members by department and position. Writers submitting letters by mail should include addresses and telephone numbers for verification of authorship. Letters for which verification cannot be made will not be published.

SIU losing faculty while trying to gain prestige

By Robert Wren

Associate Editorial Page Editor

Well, the voice of officialdom has spoken. SIU isn't losing teachers solely because of low salaries after all.

In a report presented to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) last week, it was implied that the University lost about 100 teachers because of low salaries.

Robert E. Gentry, SIU vice-president for financial affairs, felt obliged to clarify the implications of the report in regard to salaries.

"Salaries are bad enough that they're a significant factor in the ability to keep people on or hire new people. It's a matter of what you can ... and what you can't quantify. We zeroed in on this one," Gentry said.

It was reported last week that SIU is requesting the largest budget increases in the state—among other things, the University is asking for a 12 per cent increase in faculty salaries.

Let's take a euphoric stance for a moment and imagine that SIU gets everything it asks for, especially the faculty pay raises.

What then, will the University officials offer as reasons for the continued loss of instructors along with the failure to attract replacements?

Maybe it could be the "publish or perish" doctrine recently emphasized by the University—the doctrine used as an ax over faculty heads to divide their time between teaching and research. SIU President Warren Brandt himself said the balance should be "about 50-50." Fine. We can foresee SIU students in the future walking around campus—half the time thinking original thoughts and the other half quoting research statistics as espoused by their instructors.

In the fight for a legislative override of Gov. Walker's higher education vetoes, the University of Illinois, along with SIU and other state schools, are vying for salary increases for their faculty.

And in any question of university financing, the U of I generally gets what it wants. It is, after all, still considered THE state school and has, according to the Chicago Tribune, a worldwide reputation to protect. It was reported correctly last week that SIU's budget requests were the highest in the state—that the U of I's requests didn't top ours is because they have so much more to deal with.

So in view of the University of Illinois' protecting their "worldwide reputation," let's consider SIU's "reputation" if such a thing exists.

For years, SIU has suffered from the label of being a "party school," which was, to an extent, unfair. There were no more or no less parties on this campus than most others.

Now, with an increase in enrollment, President Brandt has proposed higher admission standards for the University, which has caused no small amount of controversy. But this is only a minor move in improving what semblance of a reputation now possessed by the school. What the administration seems to be after is that intangible known as prestige. The question is, how much prestige can be gained if the University of Illinois is still the honcho school of the state?

Institutions of higher education all over the state are hurting financially and, with the condition of the state's overall budget, relief will more than likely be slow in forthcoming.

And now that SIU has acknowledged that money isn't the only reason faculty are being lost, maybe they can concentrate on other reasons for faculty leaving, such as morale.

In a column written last week on faculty vs. administrative salaries, a mistake of clarification was made. It was noted that faculty members received a 2.5 per cent raise. What wasn't made clear was that the figure 2.5 was an average figure, which was pointed out to this office by some irate journalism faculty members, who noted they received increases on the order of 1.9 per cent. Again, priorities.

And there's the matter of a 50-50 ratio between teaching and research. If that is the case (and apparently it is), where does that leave us, the student? Those of us that actually come here desirous of an education will now labor under the thought that our instructors are spending half their time doing research for a publication that at least 50 people will read rather than preparing lectures or modes of instruction.

The emphasis is definitely being placed on research at this hallowed institution. Move over, Harvard and Yale.

Easier ways do exist to improve the academic stature of this University that for all practical purposes won't cost a dime. We start at the bottom.

Miles of type have been devoted to the loss in the average student's ability to write a simple English sentence. And in light of the University's direction toward statistical research, it's not going to get any better here. But consider this:

At the University of Chicago (no slouch when it comes to having a reputation), freshman writing courses are taught by tenured professors. At SIU, the same courses are taught almost exclusively by teaching assistants. Enough said.

Harvard and Yale have precious little to worry about.

Conserving energy rapidly becoming a lost art

By Steve Hahn

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

We Americans aren't elephants, so to say. We forget so very easily.

We don't like to conserve or strain. We like to grow old and fat. Oh, occasionally when an issue strikes close to home, we get a little riled, but we're basically a passive, contented people. When you're satisfied, there's no reason to change. We let things ride.

This particular tirade, if you want to call it that, concerns energy conservation—or more aptly, the lack of it. I know it's difficult in this fast-paced world to think about anything, much less our consumption habits, so I'll be brief.

Item, November 1973: In keeping with "our" national fuel conservation program, former SIU President David Derge orders thermostats lowered from "72 or 73 degrees" to 68 degrees. Derge also orders lighting reduced to the "lowest possible levels."

Item, November 1976: Thermostats ordered set back up to 70, though the thermostats in most buildings read from 72 to 75 degrees. Sixty-eight degrees is "just a little abnormally uncomfortable," Thomas Ingram, SIU superintendent of utilities tells us.

Item, November 1975: Auto corporations announce that half of the top 10 sellers are compacts or subcompacts. Only two on the list are full size.

Item, November 1976: Eight of the top 10 best sellers are big, two are compacts.

We heard all the admonishments from the so-called conservation nuts, but nothing seemed to sink in. Even the subtle advertisements showing the long lines of cars at "your neighborhood" Shell station didn't work. How quickly we forget.

We couldn't wear sweaters in our 68-degree rooms, we had to turn the heat up to 72. We liked those small cars, they saved us some cash, but when it came to a small hunk of metal, plastic and rubber, we need more status. The little cars just didn't make it for the "man on the go."

We put brick in our toilet bowls and made an extra effort to turn out the lights. Some even conserved food.

We fought the oil barons, threatening not to use so much fuel, but again, it all drifted away like some mysterious fog on a humid summer night. After all, it was the price, not the conservation we were worried about. Remember, cheap oil sure made living easy.

We went to hear environmentalists speak, and even participated ourselves. We didn't drive around the block three times just to be 100 yards closer to our favorite pub. We joined car pools and even walked. Occasionally we even used "save" in our conversations. So the following prose is offered:

Remember the days when white tissue and low-phosphate soap were in? Perhaps it was the same time litter was a God-awful sin.

But no more. We don't walk. We'd never think about such a strain. Long gone are the days when us freaks saved rain. We're fat and full, so let's not fret. Who cares if we forget?

'The Front' hits witch hunt

Allen's presence confronts '50s, McCarthyism

By Jeff Anderson
Student Writer

One would expect "The Front," with the likes of Woody Allen, Zero Mostel and Herschel Bernardi to be an extremely funny and irrelevant film, right?

Wrong. "The Front," is a very serious movie about a similarly serious time in American history—namely the Communist "witch hunts" of the early '50s.

This film shows how entertainers were affected by the House Un-American Activities Committee and the blacklisting of anyone even distantly related to the "Communist conspiracy" dreamed up by the overly zealous Congressman Joseph McCarthy.

Woody Allen, of course, is funny but then Woody Allen could turn "The Exorcist" or "Andalusian Dog" into a comedy hit. In this film, he tries his best to play a serious role, but one is all too aware that the person on the screen is Woody Allen and not Howard Prince. Howard Prince is supposed to be "the front," a cashier who turns in stories for a friend that has been blacklisted by the Freedom Information Department. But you can almost hear the other actors calling him Woody.

The story is actually fairly brief in content. As a pure documentary, it would be only about one-half the length of Walter Bernstein's script! Allen's organization dedicated to stopping the "red invasion." Mostel, himself blacklisted in 1950, plays a very convincing role, the most convincing in the film. But then it really isn't fiction to him.

The film was directed by Martin Ritt, who was also blacklisted in this period. He begins with a series of news clips of the early '50s, an effective way of bringing the viewer into that time period and develops the main character well. However, one is left wondering how much fact and how much fiction this film contains. Fact is usually stranger than fiction, but when it comes to Woody Allen...

All in all, it is a worthwhile film, though not an Oscar winner. The best line in the film not for the kiddies, but the violence in this film is all guts and no blood, a refreshing change from the trend in popular

Drama instructor Strasberg relaxes as author of books about actors as craftsmen

By William Glover
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Lee Strasberg, the little man who put big Method into American acting, is celebrating his 75th birthday on Wednesday by maintaining a work schedule that includes teaching, acting, directing and writing four books.

"This is the way to relax," he explains his formidable agenda. "When you are not doing anything, you tense up."

Unwinding, along with self-searching, are the main messages which Strasberg has been instilling in hopeful performers for a half century through directing, private lessons and, most of all, at that sometimes controversial drama center, the Actors Studio.

Along the way his pupils have included Marlon Brando, James Dean, Ellen Burstyn, Jane Fonda, Dustin Hoffman, Steve McQueen, Joanne Woodward, Al Pacino.

An imposing assemblage of alumni and friends are giving the mild-mannered but feisty guru a gala party in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pierre Nov. 19, two days after the calendar anniversary of his birth in Vienna.

When he arrived in this country, Strasberg says, he had no interest in a theatrical career, but drifted through assorted occupations. There was some dabbling in amateur shows in an East Side settlement house.

Everything changed, however, when Italian star Elanora Duse and the Moscow Art theater visited Broadway in swift succession. Suddenly he knew what he wanted and took lessons in the craft—"I wanted to be an actor originally"—with two disciples of the Russian theater's grand maestro, Constantin Stanislavsky.

"I learned the basic elements of work which I then made use of, of course in my own individual way, because these are not rules and regulations. The surgeon's knife depends on who the surgeon is and how he uses it."

The future teacher broke into stagecraft with the Theater Guild and displayed a flair for comedy in the several "Garrick Gaeties."

With Harold Clurman and others, Strasberg formed the Group Theater, started to direct—and simultaneously found himself teaching. In 1947 he was summoned to the recently formed Actors Studio. Ever since, Strasberg and the Studio have been synonymous to the public at large, which he regrets.

"Our people quite easily go into all kinds of plays," he replies to criticism that Studio players are introspective and over-concerned with realism.

"Actually, if Marlon had simply mumbled, he wouldn't have gotten all those awards."

Misunderstanding of Method acting he allows "was as much our fault as anybody else's."

To rectify that, Strasberg is at work on a book to give the public "an idea of what the hell all the shouting is about... The problem of the actor... The actor is the only craftsman or artist who has no material outside of himself to work with."

A Review

Prince's romance with the script editor for his TV pilot prolongs the ending by at least a half hour and provides for most of the laughs, but by no means turns it into any "Sleepers." Some of the best lines are very subtle and in the middle of three-part conversations, making them very easy to miss. The audience rarely has any good belly laughs. Remember that Woody

Council to consider federal grant for relocating slum housing residents

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The City Council is scheduled to consider Monday whether to ask the federal government for a housing grant to help the city relocate residents living in unrepairable substandard housing.

The grant would allow the city to buy and demolish the substandard housing, relocate the residents and sell the land for redevelopment.

Don Monty, assistant director of community development, presented the proposal to the council last Monday. The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development would consider the application.

The proposal for a grant to cover 16 homes specifies no dollar amounts.

The city currently receives federal funds under the Community Development Block Grant program which allows it to grant up to $5,000 to rehabilitate a substandard home.

If the cost of the work is estimated to be more than $5,000, nothing can be done. This new grant proposal would, in effect, be an extension of that program.

In a memo to the council Monty stated, "It is felt that a significant number of those affected will be older residents who have developed attachment to the neighborhood in which they live and would wish to remain there."

INFORMAL POLL

BOSTON (AP) — Among 100,000 visitors to "The Revolution" exhibit here, 47 per cent have been classified in an informal survey as patriots on the colonists' side.

They were rated by a Honeywell computer according to their votes on four major Revolutionary issues — the Stamp Act, the Boston Massacre Trials, the Boston Tea Party and the Siege of Boston.

"This program will be carried out on a voluntary basis where each individual owner will have the choice of participating or not. There will be no compulsory requirements imposed on the owners to participate or no threat of condemnation procedures should they refuse to participate," Monty stated.

The proposal, like the current $5,000 housing grant program, will be available only to homeowners living on their property.

Monty stated that the program would provide participants with acquisition and relocation payments equal to the required cost of comparable "decent, safe and sanitary housing."

"It's (the grant proposal) getting to be one of the hardest needs to solve," Monty told the council.

Carter called on by religious groups to grant amnesty to draft evaders

CHICAGO(AP)—Twelve Chicago-area religious organizations Monday called on President-elect Jimmy Carter to consider amnesty for more than a million Vietnam War draft evaders.

Leaders of the groups released a joint statement saying that thus far Carter has said he is only considering a pardon for 4,400 draft evaders. The statement urged the President-elect to grant amnesty for "790,000 Vietnam-era veterans with 'bad' discharges, 500,000 who failed to register for the draft... 8,000 at-large deserters, and thousands of civilian resisters."

The plea for amnesty also was backed by Fritz Eifaw, the draft evader who returned from voluntary exile in England to address the Democratic National Convention last summer.

Eifaw said that Carter seems to understand that a large number of veterans with bad discharges are the poor and blacks who turned against the war while in service.

"Then why does he go ahead with a plan to pardon only 4,400 people who will be overwhelmingly white, middle-class and college educated?" said Eifaw.

The amnesty statement was signed by leaders of:

Chicago Federation, Union of American Hebrew Congregations; Clergy and Laity Concerned; National Assembly of Religious Women; Christ United Church of Chicago; Episcopal Diocese of Chicago; Board of Church and Society, United Methodist Church, Northern Illinois Conference; Unitarian-Universalist Association of Chicago; Ethical Humanist Society of Illinois; National Federation of Priests Councils.

Class on death offered to high school seniors

By Charles Chamberlain
Associated Press Writer

Elk Grove Village, (AP)—"The curtain of mystery about death is being rolled back—the subject is not something that should be swept under the rug," says a high school psychologist who has 150 students in his death classes.

Joe Wellman says his high school takes the students on field trips to funeral homes, cemeteries and crematoriums.

"We also have them write their own obituaries, revealing how they want to be remembered, how they see themselves. This is a good way to evaluate themselves," said Wellman. "We even have them draw their own tombstones and epitaphs. If they can't deal with the date of death they don't have to put it down."

Wellman says the three-week death courses, open only to seniors, are a "desensitizing thing and are not in an emotional atmosphere."

"When we go to funeral homes we don't see any bodies. We visit the preparation room and casket room," said Wellman. "We also have morticians visit our classes. They answer questions and explain their attitudes about their work, their responsibilities to the bereaved, and technical aspects of embalming, coffins, wakes and funerals. I would like to find a person who has a terminal illness come as a guest speaker."

Class work also includes discussions of euphemisms—such as "pass away," "rest with God," "kick the bucket" and "croak"—to a mock wake in the classroom. The students discuss reactions to the deaths of an infant, a teen-ager, a 40-year-old, and an 80-year-old.

"If a student is uncomfortable with any topic, he is excused from the class and assigned other work," said Wellman.

ROSY CRANBERRY TURKEY

Cranberry Glaze: Cook 2 cups cranberry juice cocktail until it reduces to 1 cup, add 1/2 cup honey, 1/4 cup white corn syrup and 1/4 cup butter. Simmer 10 minutes. Use as basting sauce for turkey during last 45 minutes of cooking.

CRANBERRY STUFFING

Combine:
8 cups soft bread crumbs
3 cups fresh cranberries
coarsely chopped
1 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped parsley
grated end of 2 lemons
4 eggs beaten

Toss together lightly but thoroughly. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes about 12 cups or enough to stuff a 16-pound turkey.

Ship's sinking remains a mystery after a year

By Sergio Lilli
 Associated Press Writer
 CLEVELAND, (AP)—The mysterious sinking of the Edmund Fitzgerald still holds its secret despite the release of underwater photographs showing the split section of its hull 530 feet under Lake Superior.
 Close-up pictures released by the Coast guard show that the ship's section lies upside down and its bow section is rightside up in 27 feet of mud. Coast guard officials refused to comment about the causes of the wreck.
 The freighter lost all its 29 crewmen when it sank Nov. 10, 1975 during a storm. It had departed Superior, Wis., the day before loaded with about 26,000 tons of taconite iron-ore pellets.
 But it soon ran into a storm with winds of 50 to 60 knots and waves of 20 to 30 feet.
 Because of heavy weather, the ship hugged the north shore of Lake Superior and then swung down towards Whitefish Bay for its approach to the Sault Ste. Marie locks.
 During the voyage, the Fitzgerald remained in contact with another freighter, the Arthur M. Anderson, which at the time of the sinking was about 10 miles from the Fitzgerald.
 The Fitzgerald's captain, Ernest

M. McSorley, reported by radio on the afternoon of Nov. 10 that the storm tore down the ship's deck fences, damaged a vent and that the ship had taken some water. But in testimony before a Coast Guard board of inquiry, the captain of the Anderson, J.B. Cooper, said that the Fitzgerald captain did not sound alarmed.
 The ship was never heard from again. No bodies have ever been recovered, only a lifeboat and lifejackets.
 Although previous sonar surveys revealed that the Fitzgerald had split in two, the photographs released Friday provided the first closeup view of the ship.
 The photographs show rips and tears in the ship's side and deck where it split. The tears show twisted steel torn from its rivets. The vessel's two sections lie at angles to each other with wreckage and debris in between. Windows in the pilot house were shattered and there are various tears in the bow section.
 Capt. Herbert Kothe, who was in charge of the photographic survey taken in May, said the propeller on the stern section is not damaged.
 Kothe said he could not say why the ship sank, a finding that will be made when the board of inquiry makes a report.

Citizens' group urges designation of wilderness study area in Illinois

By Chris Moenich
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
 The Illinois Wilderness Committee (IWC) wants people, especially people in Southern Illinois to get the ball rolling and support wilderness areas.
 The IWC, convened by Illinois wilderness advocates in May, is the statewide nucleus for the wilderness movement. They had their first public meeting Saturday at the Student Center.
 Steve Apfelbaum, IWC member and graduate of the University of Illinois in Champaign, said, "We are a concerned group of citizens trying to put potential lands under the 1964 Wilderness Act."
 He said the committee wants to build a base of supporters in Southern Illinois, because almost all the wilderness area in Illinois is located there.
 A citizen's proposal for a Wilderness Study Area at Larue-Pine Hills-Hutchins Creek, 20 miles southwest of Carbondale, was drawn up by such organizations as the Sangamon Wilderness Group in December, 1975. Carol Long, IWC member from Springfield said that it had been initially drawn up for 27,000 acres but has since been reduced to 20,000 acres and now excludes private lands.
 A Wilderness Study Area, said Long, is the first step toward designating a wilderness area. A study area has no effects on private owners but it emphasizes showing the advantages of studying the area for wilderness designation, she said.

 The area is one of the most studied natural areas in Illinois, Apfelbaum said. If designated a wilderness area, it will be a place for Illinois' people to experience solitude and learn about wilderness on its own terms.
 Long said the land has 90 per cent of Southern Illinois' mammals, two of the states most outstanding watersheds, limestone bluffs, vanishing animal species and is about 70 per cent Forest Service land. "In general, he said, the area supports a diverse community of life."
 "We picked this area for a wilderness study because it has potential for eventual wilderness designation," Long said. She added that the area has three sections separated by roads. The land was initially selected because there are few homes and people in the area.
 Kathy Wood, IWC member from Champaign, said no legal actions has been taken on the study area proposal.
 Apfelbaum said, "It is the purpose of IWC to generate interest. We are reaching out and asking for economic and political help."
 To help their efforts to form a Southern Illinois coalition, they are preparing a wilderness narrated slide presentation which they hope to duplicate and circulate in Illinois.

Eventually they will publish a newsletter and a Midwest wilderness brochure and have regular meetings. There is a five dollar yearly membership fee and outdoor excursions.
 Long said Illinois has several potential wilderness areas and they are intent on organizing a statewide IWC. "Wilderness brochure and have regular meetings. There is a five dollar yearly membership fee and outdoor excursions."
 Long said Illinois has several potential wilderness areas and they are intent on organizing a statewide IWC. "Wilderness is an unique experience which draws thoughts away from our structured and hurried society," she said.
 The 1964 Wilderness Act, according to Apfelbaum, helps to prevent the erosion of our remaining wilderness heritage. Federally owned lands, such as the Shawnee National Forest, designated as wilderness under the act by Congress, are protected from commercial enterprise and unnatural intrusion. Mining is allowed until 1984.
 There are ten members in the tax-exempt organization. They are trying to collect economic and political help through citizen support. They are now building membership and trying to get Congressional approval for Larue-Pine Hills-Hutchins Creek as a Wilderness Study Area.

The following jobs for student workers have been listed by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

To be eligible, a student must be enrolled full-time and must have a current ACT Family Financial Statement on file with the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance. Applications may be picked up at the Student Work Office, Woody Hall-B, third floor.

Jobs available as of November 12: Fall openings—

Clerical—four openings, morning hours; one opening, afternoon hours; clerical, typing and filing

Beg your pardon

In the Student Senate candidates statements in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian, the majors of two of the candidates were listed incorrectly. Peter Alexander is a political science major and Jim Steele is a freshman in journalism. Both Steele and Alexander are candidates from Brush Towers.

A headline over the statements submitted by candidates from Thompson Point, "Two compete at Thompson Point", may imply that only two candidates are on the ballot. Although only two of the candidates submitted statements to the Daily Egyptian, there are four names on the ballot.

SIU geology dept. gets Amoco grant

SIU's department of geology has received an unlimited $1,000 grant from the Amoco Foundation, Chicago. According to the terms of the grant, the money may be used for any purpose except funding endowments.

Russell Dutcher, chairman of the SIU-C geology department, said Amoco made the grant because of the company's familiarity with SIU-C's geology department and the high quality of its graduates.

Campus Briefs

Alpha Chi Sigma will sponsor a lecture on the SIU-C European Travel and Study Tours in "History of Chemistry" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Neckers C Bldg. Room 218. The speaker will be John H. Wotiz, professor from the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry. The lecture is open to the public.

George Leung will present a dissertation seminar on "Fatty Acid Esters of D-Glucose and D-Galactose as potential plant growth regulator," at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the College of Science Conference Room.

A course entitled, "Philosophical Perspectives on Women," (PHIL 441), will be offered spring semester at 2 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays in Faner Room 1228. The class will focus on the history of philosophy of sex, love, feminism, abortion and hiring practices. Elizabeth R. Eames will be the instructor.

Herbert S. Donow, associate professor of English and president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT), and Richard Lanigan, assistant professor of speech and chairman of the CFUT Membership Committee, attended a meeting of the Southwest Area Council of the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT) concerning the organization of IFT locals in the southwest area of the state. The meeting was held on NOV. 12 and 13 at the Mount Vernon Holiday Inn.

The Illinois Humanities Council, the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Department of Black American Studies will present "Shadows on the Wall: Minorities on Film," a video tape discussion of early stereotypes of Indians and Blacks on film. The presentation will take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday in Lawson 141. Admission is free.

The Carbondale chapter of Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific research society of North America, will sponsor a lecture by J.E. Cermak, director of the fluid dynamics and diffusion laboratory at Colorado State University, entitled "Wind Engineering: A New Discipline." The lecture will be held at 4 p.m. in the Engineering and Technology Auditorium, Room A111.

The Inter-Greek Council of SIU is sponsoring its first annual fashion show at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms. Admission will be fifty cents for students and $1 for non-students. Tickets and further information can be obtained at the Student Center Activities Center, third floor, 453-5714.

The following faculty members served on the North Central Association evaluation team at Herrin High School, Nov. 14-17: Billy G. Dixon and Michael R. Jackson from instruction and media, Michael Altekuse from guidance and educational psychology, Dean Stuck from educational leadership and John Hunt and Dan Reusch from instruction and media.

Eugenia Handler, an instructor in social welfare, has been elected the first chairperson of the newly organized Statewide Health Coordinating Council.

Anthony M. Platt, a former professor of criminology at the University of California at Berkeley, will speak on "Crime, Repression and Resistance" at 7 p.m. Thursday in Wham 105. At 9 a.m. on Friday, he will conduct an open workshop on insurgent research in the Agriculture Building seminar room.

The Department of Zoology is having an informal program from 12:45 to 3:45 p.m. Thursday in 303 Life Science II to discuss questions regarding courses, requirements and job opportunities in zoology.

Expert on crime to speak about crime, resistance

Anthony M. Platt, a radical criminologist and author of two books, "The Child Savers: The Invention of Delinquency," and "The Politics of Riot Commission," will speak at SIU on Thursday and Friday.

Platt, a former professor of criminology at the University of California at Berkeley, is now a member of a radical criminal research collective called the Center for Research on Criminal Justice.

The center, according to Angie McCarty, president of the SIU Administration of Justice Association (AJA), is working for radical change.

Platt will speak from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday in Wham 105 on "Crime, Repression and Resistance."

On Friday, he will speak at an open workshop dealing with insurgent (non-traditional) research. It will be held in the Agriculture Building seminar room from 9 a.m. to noon. Both events are open to the public.

Platt's visit is sponsored by the AJA, the Graduate Student Council, the Department of Sociology and the College of Human Resources.

An article in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian mentioned that Pete Mueller, local artist, pleaded guilty to stealing the hands from the Pulliam Hall clock and was placed on parole. Mueller was placed on probation, not parole. Also Mueller is not presently being paid for his cartoons that appear in the Daily Egyptian. He has donated them for the paper's use.

Candidates Statements

The following short statements (35 word maximum) were submitted by candidates. These give a concise candidate platform. For a more detailed platform of candidate views, see the Tuesday, Nov. 16th edition of the Daily Egyptian.

Election Commissioner

University Park

As our university continues to expand, it becomes imperative that student interests are aggregated and expressed in all aspects of college life. I want to help you meet that challenge, as your student senator.

Sam D. Dunning

Brush Towers

There's a young energetic freshman who is seeking votes for Student Senate from Brush Towers' residents. He's a Political Science major with much student government experience. His name, Pete Alexander. Vote for him today.

Pete Alexander

How many Brush Towers residents can name their Student Senate representatives? Not many can. This kind of representation must end. It's time for a change. I'll work for that change. Vote for Jim Steele.

Jim Steele

Help end apathy in Student Government. A vote for Jeff Jovien from Brush Towers will help to bring about improved government and better use of student activity fees.

Jeff Jovien

The S.I.U. party has selected Tom McGarry to run for Student Senator because he is the BEST candidate running. Place your vote for a student interested in the university. Vote for Tom McGarry, today. VOTE!

Tom McGarry

Thompson Point

Help me kick the Senate into high gear. I intend to get things done for Thompson Point and for SIU. Vote Tea Party Now. Elect Kelly Carls—A Voice, Not an Echo.

Kelly D. Carls

Student government can be an effective voice in determining University policy. However, Student Government can only be effective if you make an effort to vote. SHOW YOUR SUPPORT, VOTE TEA PARTY NOW.

Douglas (Sleepy) Harre

West Side

I feel that more responsibility should be shown by Student Senators in regards to finding out and communicating the needs and desires of their constituencies, transmitting them to Student Government, and then helping to find solutions.

Pete Allison

P.O.T. People Organized Together. Am currently working with Student Government Activities Council and with Student Government; would help put energies towards more entertainment. Students can't organize concerts in the Arena and I will remedy this.

Winchell's power told in literary look at his life

By Dan Kening
Student Writer

"Winchell: His Life and Times" by Herman Klurfeld Praeger Publishers. 1976. 207 pp. $8.95.

"Good evening, Mr. and Mrs. America and all the ships at sea. Let's go to press!" These words were the trademark of a man who for over 40 years was part of the everyday life of an America that no longer exists.

At his peak, Walter Winchell, gossip-columnist, broadcaster and commentator, had the power to boost or destroy a career with a single line of newspaper print, or one sentence in front of the radio microphone.

Herman Klurfeld was Winchell's ghostwriter for nearly 30 years, yet despite the long association, Klurfeld is able to give an honest, and often critical portrait of one of the giants of the American press.

It's hard to imagine the power Winchell wielded in his heyday. There is no Winchell in the 1970's, and perhaps we're better off without such an authoritarian figure in the media.

Although he was one of the first to alert Americans to the ominous rumblings coming from Nazi Germany in the early 1930's, Winchell often hurt innocent people in his columns out of personal whims. His intense dislike of President Harry Truman has been cited as one of the primary reasons for the closeness of the 1948 election. Often the saying was, "As Winchell goes, so goes the country."

Klurfeld paints a picture of Winchell as a loner, fighting against the world through his columns and broadcasts. Winchell understood his power, and wasn't hesitant to use it, even when it turned against him. His hatred of Communism and avid support of Joseph McCarthy's "red-baiting" is one example of Winchell's emotions getting the best of him.

At his height, Winchell's column was syndicated in over 1,000 newspapers, and his earnings exceeded $1 million a year, making him by far the highest paid journalist of his time. He was on top of the world and wanted everyone to know it. New York's Stork Club became his court. He was its king. On any given night Winchell could be seen at his personal table surrounded by movie stars, writers and politicians. He considered himself the "King of Broadway."

Winchell had almost as many enemies and critics as fans. He carried on personal vendettas in his columns, never hesitating to mention names of those targeted for Winchell's contempt.

He carried on running battles with all his editors and bosses over the content of his columns and broadcasts, and always refused to delete "objectionable" material from them. He feuded with top columnists like Drew Pearson and Ed Sullivan, calling them imitators of his style.

Klurfeld was with Winchell during the better part of his career. He wrote many of Winchell's columns for him, although Winchell never would publicly admit to using other writers. He portrays Winchell as a tragic figure who was the toast of New York, but found little love in his personal life.

Perhaps because of his family problems, Winchell threw himself totally into his work. Winchell was always looking for a scoop, anecdote or joke for his column. Klurfeld says Winchell's sources included politicians (including Presidents), gangsters, waiters and prostitutes; anyone who had something he could use.

Winchell's decline began in the 1950's. A charge of racial discrimination by singer Josephine Baker, and his fervent support of

A Review

McCarthy led many to believe that Winchell, the old liberal, was changing his stripes. Television also contributed to his hard times. The old hard-hitting Winchell style just didn't come across as well on the TV screen.

The 1960's showed a further decline in Winchell's career with only about 150 papers continuing to carry his column. He died in 1972 at the age of 74 from cancer, but Klurfeld insists it was from a broken heart. Although many have followed in his footsteps, there is no single columnist or broadcaster with the audience and influence Winchell had at his peak. Klurfeld's book is a fascinating look at a man who was an integral part of four decades of American life. As fellow journalist Heywood Brown once said, "If there never was a Walter Winchell, somebody would have had to invent him."

Young love's many obstacles make 'Billy Joe' an unforgettable story

By Pamela Aiello
Student Writer

"Ode To Billy Joe" by Herman Raucher, Dell Publishing Co., Inc., 1976. 256 pp., $1.75.

"Ode to Billy Joe" tells a story of two young lovers and the obstacles they try to overcome. The book originated from the song of the same title written by Bobbie Gentry.

On June 3, 1953, Billy Joe McAllister jumped off the Tallahatchie Bridge. The book explains the story behind that fatal jump.

The story is a typical love story in which boy meets girl, boy and girl fall in love, girl's parents disapprove of the relationship, secret rendezvous of the young lovers occur, girl's parents decide to accept the relationship, then another obstacle delays or ruins the relationship.

The story involves Billy Joe McAllister and Bobbie Lee Hartley, both teenagers. The setting is in Tallahatchie County, Miss., in the early 1950s. Both Billy Joe and Bobbie Lee are farmers' children. They live close to one another and attend the same school.

Billy Joe is a "hell-raiser" who constantly plays practical jokes and creates scenes in school. Bobbie Lee is a quiet "back-woods" young lady who is going through adolescence and feels a need to sneak a peak at "true romance" type magazines in order to understand that other people also have sexual desires and that she should not feel guilty because of the romantic thoughts she harbors.

The main obstacle between Billy Joe and Bobbie Lee is her father, who will not permit her to "receive gentlemen callers," because he claims she is not old enough. Throughout the book, Bobbie Lee is forced to meet Billy Joe secretly when she is out walking.

The story climaxes when the Okolona River Bottom Jamboree takes place. Many people from various counties attended the event, which was nothing more than an excuse for a big, drunk party. Everyone attended the jamboree including Billy Joe, Bobbie Lee and her parents.

However, when the younger folks started to become rowdy and drunk,

A Review

Bobbie Lee was escorted home by her parents. Billy Joe stayed and got drunk with the other young men.

It took the town two full days to recover from the jamboree. But Billy Joe never did completely recover. After the jamboree was over, Bobbie Lee was the last person to see him alive again.

When Billy Joe's body was discovered, the townspeople began to talk. Many said they believed he killed himself over "that Hartley girl" whom they claimed to "be with child." Bobbie Lee knew why Billy Joe jumped, and it was by no means because she was pregnant. Although Bobbie Lee willingly accepted Billy Joe's advances, she remained a virgin until his death.

Billy Joe's latent homosexual tendencies were the cause of his death. Although he explains his problem to Bobbie Lee, the guilt of being unable to satisfy the only woman he ever loved remains so heavily upon him that he commits suicide.

Raucher's use of description in the book deserves high recognition. He not only paints word pictures of the scenes, but also digs deeply into the sub-conscious of both Billy Joe and Bobbie Lee.

Canadians cross the border to do their shopping

By Bob Ingle
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP)—Canadians are invading western Washington, armed with shopping lists and money.

Because of the Washington-British Columbia proximity, Canadians and Americans in this region for years have crossed the border routinely to enjoy each other's offerings. In the past two years the traffic has grown steadily—sometimes causing huge border jams—and most of it is Canadian.

If Canadians stay at least 48 hours they can take back $50 worth of goods duty free. Last week, Vancouver, B.C., travel agent Jack McLaron booked two Amtrak trainloads of people—about 750—to Seattle by running one small newspaper ad: "Seattle Welcomes Canadian Christmas Shoppers." The shoppers left an estimated $250,000 in Seattle after their spree, businessmen estimated.

"Our phones have been ringing all day," McLaron said Monday. "Today we've been getting about 400 calls an hour" wanting to reserve space on the next shopper special.

McLaron said he doesn't have to promote out-of-country shopping because the interest is already there. And, by the same token, Frank Feeman of the Downtown Seattle Development Association is just trying to make life easier for the shopping Canadians.

"I've hired a band and a dancing girl to greet the train," he said. He also passed out shopping bags with coupons good for free items and discounts on others. A large department store opened a Canadian lounge for the occasion. "For years Canadians have been coming down here and shopping, and it's our way of saying thanks," said Feeman.

The roundtrip cost was $34.50 which included two nights in a hotel, double occupancy.

A Burnaby housewife was happy she found a perfumed cosmetic soap selling for $2 that cost $4.95 in Vancouver. A Vancouver woman bought two dolls for about $7 each that go for more than $15 back home. For $70 a man with a shaggy dog could buy a deluxe pair of electric pet clippers. The price in Fido's shears in Vancouver—$120.

Exhausted from bargain hunting, a Canadian bought a $3 sandwich and called that a steal. One American businessman agreed, recalling spending $6 for a ham sandwich and cup of coffee in a Vancouver hotel.

Bellingham, Wash., which likes to represent itself as being just "40 minutes from 1½ million people in the Fraser Valley Canada," is the recipient of another kind of heavy shopping, for groceries.

British Columbia license plates seem as numerous as those of Washington during heavy shopping days in Bellingham.

"Poultry, milk and processed food runs about 25 per cent cheaper," explains Evan Evan-Atkinson, Vancouver B.C. Sun consumer reporter.

"Even though you have to pay the tariff, it's worth driving to Bellingham and spending $100 if you save about $25. I have a friend with six children who says he saves about $50 to $75 a month on groceries."

Evan-Atkinson said a TV dinner in Vancouver costs about $1.09 but can be bought in Washington for 69 cents. A bottle of catsup costs 31 cents in Bellingham but seven cents more across the border.

Egypt lends exhibit

Art from Tut's tomb shown in U.S.

By Donald Sanders
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most important and beautiful exhibition of ancient Egyptian art ever to visit the United States, 55 objects from the tomb of Tutankhamun, opens Wednesday at the National Gallery of Art.

Fifty-five objects of gold, alabaster, precious woods and gems will be displayed in six U.S. cities during the coming 30 months as a gift of the Arab Republic of Egypt.

Howard Carter, the British archaeologist who entered the pharaoh's tomb 54 years ago next Tuesday, wrote in his journal that when he first peered inside:

"Details of the room within emerged slowly from the mist, strange animals, statues and gold — everywhere the glint of gold."

The objects of gold will attract the most attention.

There is the much-reproduced life-size portrait mask of the boy king, made of hammered gold with heavy encrusted decorations of carnelian, lapis lazuli, quartz, feldspar, obsidian and colored glass.

Weighing about 20 pounds, it covered the head and shoulders of the mummified king.

A 30-inch-high portrait shows the young pharaoh on a papyrus boat enacting a mythical hippopotamus hunt, symbolic of overthrowing evil.

It was carved of wood, overlaid with gold, brass, bronze and other minerals. The hippopotamus is not depicted; presumably it might have brought bad luck in the tomb.

Not much is known of the boy king, whose years were probably 1334-1325 B.C. He ascended to the throne at age 9 and died of unknown causes at age 18 or 19. Because his death was sudden, his own tomb was unfinished, and Tutankhamun was buried in the tomb that had been prepared for his Vizier Ay.

Students to model winter fashions; proceeds will go to scholarship fund.

CARBONDALE, ILL., Nov. — Twenty-two student models from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale will model for a good cause Wednesday evening (Nov. 17) at a fashion show sponsored by SIU-C's Inter-Greek Council.

Proceeds from the show — which will feature models from each of the fraternities and sororities at SIU — will be the beginning of a scholarship fund dedicated to Cliff Stein, a Murphysboro Township High School senior who died in October of an apparent heart attack.

Brett Champion, Inter-Greek Council chairman, says scholarships from the fund will go to qualifying freshmen from the Carbondale-Murphysboro who attend SIU-C.

The show is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms and will feature winter styles donated by businesses in Carbondale and Murphysboro.

Tickets are on sale for $1 (50 cents for students) at the Student Activities Center Office in the Student Center, and will be available at the door.

Champion said he anticipates a full house for Wednesday's show and hopes the Council will make the event an annual affair.

Team Canada, Canadian Club set to meet in IM floor hockey final

By Jim Misunas
Student Writer

The "Canadians" rule SIU's men's intramural floor hockey playoffs again this year as Canadian Club and Team Canada, last season's champs and runners-up, have advanced to Thursday's championship game at Pulliam Gym.

Both teams defeated three foes to qualify for the 4 p.m. final game. Canadian Club is 9-0 for the season. Team Canada is 8-0.

Canadian Club defeated the Cheech Wizards 11-1, then beat the Ginks 5-1, before vanquishing Delta Upsilon 6-1 in Sunday's semifinals.

Team Canada beat the Headhunters and Bombers by identical 8-1 scores, then beat the James Gang Aborigines 2-1 in double-overtime in the tournaments' most exciting game.

by Jim Misunas
Student Writer

Kathy Sharpe won the advanced orienteering women's competition for the second consecutive year as six winners earned trophies in SIU's intramural meet held Saturday at the Touch of Nature Environmental Center (Camp Little Giant).

Sharpe, a senior in zoology, won the 7.1-kilometer red course with a time of 1:29:50. That bettered her winning time of last year (1:57:55) by nearly thirty minutes.

Orienteering, which tests a participants skill at finding checkpoints on a marked course by using a map and compass, winners in three classes—beginning, novice and advanced—were decided in the meet. James Hertz, a senior in political science, won the advanced men's course with time of 68:20.

Gary Stratton, a commercial graphics design major, won the 4-kilometer "orange" novice men's division with a time of 62:00. Holly Hartmann, a freshman from Pratt, Kan., won the women's novice with a posted time of 77:35.

Jeff Singer and Claudia Kobylanski won the men's and women's beginning course of 2.2 kilometers with times of 30:40 and 63:30.

Mark Marcucci's goal won the game for Team Canada, after the team had trailed for most of the contest.

"Both goalies held their respective teams in the game," Warner said. "I just couldn't believe some of the saves they were making out there."

Mark Beaupre had given James Gang a first period lead on a power play goal. John Rottman assisted on the goal. It looked like that goal would win the game for James Gang.

But with less than three minutes left in the game, Beaupre was whistled for a two-minute penalty. Team Canada had their chance and took advantage.

Paul Cassidy tied the game with a 40-foot shot that whistled into the upper left corner of the goal. Marcucci assisted on the goal.

In the overtime, Bob Sites, one of the James' Gang top players, fouled out. Later in the second overtime Marcucci won the game. James and Bob Warner assisted on the goal.

"We've got the best defense in the league," Warner said. "We're really playing well right now. Everyone improved a great deal since the start of the year. We're going to be ready Thursday."

"It's been a tougher year for our offense compared to last year," Jim Arlington, Canadian Club Coach, said.

"We haven't scored as many goals as in previous years because of the competition is better."

"We still score the most goals in the league, but the other teams are getting better," Arlington said. "They're improving all the time."

Six winners in intramural orienteering

"The course was a challenging one," said advanced winner James Hertz. Hertz, a Carbondale native, placed sixth in last years men's 19-20 year-old national orienteering meet at Hastings, Mich. Hertz is also Illinois' 1976 state cycling champ. He won that meet last summer in Rockford, Ill.

"The course was well set up," agreed women's champ Kathy Sharpe. "There were several ways to get to each checkpoint," she said. Both Hertz and Sharpe said they were distracted in nature's setting by man-made disturbances during the day. Sharpe said that there was a policeman in the woods saying there was to be "no hunting" in the area. Hertz said that at the southernmost point of the course he was "dive-bombed" by airplanes "test-landing" at an open field just a few hundred yards away.

One participant was apparently surprised she won her division. "I thought I was slow," said novice winner Holly Hartmann, "but it wasn't the course's fault, I just got lost."

Ruggers beat EIU in finale

The SIU Rugby Club ended its fall season Saturday with a 15-4 victory over Eastern Illinois. In regular season play, the ruggers finished with a 4-3-1 record, and an overall record of 6-7-1. SIU was 2-4-1 in tournament play.

In Saturday's game, played at the pitch near "Abe" Martin Field, SIU scored first when John Shell scored a penalty try when he ran around right end 10 minutes into the game. Jim Elderton added the two-point conversion kick for a 6-0 lead.

Eastern came back before the first half ended to score a try, but missed the conversion, and trailed 6-4.

In the second half, Elderton added three field goals, all penalty kicks of 25, 30, and 25 yards to insure SIU's victory.

Practice for the spring season begins the second week of February. The rugger's first game of the spring season will be on the first weekend in March.

Valley teams turn on offense; Tulsa still leads conference

The defenses took the day off around the Valley last weekend as the offenses rolled and piled up points like there was no tomorrow in almost all of the games a Valley team played in.

The wildest game played was West Texas State's shootout win over Northeast Louisiana by the skyscraping score of 58-41. West Texas gained 653 yards, 566 on the ground, which is the highest total of any major college team for one game this season. The Buffaloes also had three runners with over a 100 yards for the day.

While that was going on in Texas, Tulsa was using an awesome aerial attack to knock off Drake, 45-20. The game featured the top two passers in the Valley, Ron Hickerson of Tulsa and Jeff Martin of Drake. Hickerson got the better of it, but Martin set a career record for Drake for completions.

In other games, Indiana State beat Wichita State, 20-17 and Fresno State humiliated New Mexico State 44-0.

Tulsa was ranked twelfth last week by the UPI coaches poll, but wasn't ranked in the AP writers poll. Tulsa's game against Wichita State this Saturday has been selected as part of ABC-TV's regional telecast.

This is the last weekend of full schedule in the Valley as five of the seven teams close out their seasons. The only remaining game will pit Tulsa against West Texas State and the winner will probably win the Valley title.

Tulsa is undefeated in the Valley, having won twice, New Mexico is second with a 2-1 record and West Texas is 1-1. Andre Herrera's 1,430 yards on the ground still ranks him second in the nation for total rushing yards, and his 143 yards per game doubles the total of Jeff Haney of Drake, who is the closest runner to Herrera.

Herrera has scored 74 points on 12 touchdowns and one two-point conversion. Closest to him is Robert Forbes, a placekicker from Drake with 56 points.

And Herrera is third in total offense this week, being edged out by the fine performance by Martin of Drake. Hickerson leads in that category.

Steve Mick remained fourth in punting average, and Dan Brown is still tied for third in interceptions with three steals, and Ken Seaman is fourth in kick scoring with 20 extra points and five field goals.

SIU dropped in most team statistics last week as a result of the thrashing from Bowling Green. Ranked first in rushing offense and scoring, before Saturday's game this week the Salukis are second in rushing behind West Texas State, and dropped to fourth in scoring. As a result, the team dropped a notch to fourth in total offense.

SIU remained second in scoring defense, despite Bowling Green's 35 points, but dropped to fourth in total defense. Strangely, the Salukis moved up in passing defense to second but dropped to fourth in rushing defense.

IM runners nab turkeys in yearly 'trot'

Mark Pealstrom defended his championship in SIU's intramural cross country run Monday by winning the three-mile race with a time of 14:10. Ed Zeman's time of 14:14 placed him second. Both winners received trophies and turkeys.

Theresa Burgard won the two-mile women's course with a time of 13:05. She also received a trophy and a turkey.

Jackie Lott won a turkey by best predicting her finish time. Lot was off twenty seconds faster than her predicted time of 14:40.

Thirty-two men and 17 women participated in the "turkey trot" race.

A group of runners chug up a hill by the Arena in the intramural turkey trot held Monday. The winners received trophies and early Thanksgiving turkeys for their efforts. (Staff photo by Peter Zimmerman)

Ping-pongers crowned

Table tennis champions were recently announced by the Women's Intramural Office.

In women's singles, Helen Meyer defeated Jeri Hoffman in the best two-out-of-three match, 21-11 and 21-14. Meyer teamed with Judy Seger to win the women's doubles competition over Thea Breite-Mauri Kohler, 21-10 and 21-16.

Four teams were entered in mixed doubles, and again Meyer and teammate Dill Boryk emerged victorious over Maryanne O'Malley and Bill Cleary, 21-7, 18-21 and 21-5.

In men's singles, Wakeel Idewu defeated Kofi Asgbey, 21-10 and 21-18. Idewu emerged as the champion from a field of 32 contestants.

Fourteen teams competed in men's doubles. In a close contest, Sharifuddin Mohamed and Hussain Othman beat Mujib Mumuni and Wakeel Idewu, 22-20 and 21-18.

Passing attack attracted Evans to SIU

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

When Rey Dempsey took over the coaching reins at SIU, he said that his teams would throw the ball more than past SIU teams. He had an abundance of quarterbacks, and two little-known freshman.

One of them is Reggie Evans, who has started the last three games, and will Evans looked impressive the first three games that he played, but had a tough time against Bowling Green last Saturday in SIU's 35 defeat.

He completed only three of 11 passes for 27 yards and was sacked three times.

"It was a bad day on my part," Evans said Tuesday before practice. "I just wasn't concentrating. The receivers were open a couple times, but I just didn't hit them. It was just a let down on my part."

"They (Bowling Green) had a pretty good defensive line, and they were shooting their linebackers a lot," he said. "Other than that, I had good protection."

Evans was taken out of the game in the third quarter and replaced by Bob Collins. A little while later, Evans went back in the game and finished it out.

"I didn't think I would go back in, but I stood on the sidelines and paid attention to what was going on so I wouldn't be lost if I did go back in the game," said the 6-0, 170 pound quarterback.

Evans is currently hitting 40 per cent of his passes, (12 of 30) for 221 yards.

"I don't think I've been playing up to my ability," he said. "I can play a lot better."

He started his first game in the 54-0 Homecoming win over Northern Illinois.

"I was a little nervous in that game but not too much in the last two," Evans said.

The first game he played this year was in the closing minutes of the loss to Arkansas State Oct. 16.

"Coach (Joel) Spiker told me that I was the No. 3 quarterback for that game so I thought that I would play some of the game."

And play he did. He led the Salukis on a 48-yard march downfield, only to be intercepted in the end zone to thwart the drive.

"I wasn't satisfied with that last pass," he said.

But the next week, he was called to start. The week before the game, he played with the No. 1 team in practice although Dempsey didn't tell him that he was going to start against NIU until two days before the game.

"Once I started playing with the first team in practice, I felt I was going to start. I was surprised in a way, because I didn't know if Coach Dempsey would start a freshman or not."

Evans was an All-City quarterback for Simeon High School in Chicago. His senior year, he led the team to the Chicago quarterfinals but lost the game.

Although he wasn't heavily recruited by the Ohio States and Michigans, "a lot of schools were trying to get me," he said.

"But I came here because Coach Dempsey was from the pros. He talked about passing, and that's the thing I like to do most. Other schools were running more options."

With only one game to go before the season ends, Evans wants to finish out the year as a winner.

"I'm going to give my all this game," he said. "I want us to finish with a good record (7-4), but especially I want the seniors to leave with a good record."

The men's basketball squad isn't the only cage team preparing for the upcoming season. The women, coached by "Mo" Weiss, have been practicing for a few weeks. Above, Sue Schaeffer (24) heads for the

Stupidity and greed may destroy baseball

Baseball's free agent draft is over and the bidding wars have started.

A few days after the draft a couple weeks ago, the Boston Red Sox signed former Minnesota Twin reliever Bill Campbell for a reported $1 million for four years. Considering that Campbell is still basically a non-proven pitcher, it follows that other players like Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett are sure to get even larger amounts.

The players figure that it's smart to try and get all the money they can while they have a chance. But it's not smart—it's stupid.

Baseball, (and the three other major sports for that matter), has been going to the dogs the last few years, and the speed is starting to pick up.

People have been saying that the day is going to come when something will have to be done about the exorbitant salaries that clubs are paying to their athletes.

No one knows when it will happen, but I don't think that it's very far off—especially in baseball.

The free agent or "re-entry" draft is sure to bring that day closer.

Two years ago, Andy Messersmith of the California Angels, played out his option. Arbitrator Peter Seitz declared Messersmith free to negotiate with any club. Two federal judges upheld the decision, and the flood gates were opened. For the first time in the history of the sport, players were able to play out their option and move without being traded.

It was called a landmark decision, but I call it a stupid decision. One that is going to do more to change the course of the game than anything else.

Owner Charlie Finley of the Oakland A's will probably lose six players in the free-agent draft. Or be "picked clean" as he calls it.

He said that it would cost him $6 million in bonuses to get his players back—that's before salaries. But he seems not to care that much—others will follow in the next three years, he says.

Twenty-four players played out their options this year. "If you thought 24 was a lot, just wait," Finley said.

But he added, "I don't blame the players—it's the stupidity of the owners. You'll see baseball owners going bankrupt."

Bankruptcy isn't all that will hurt the owners. The fans who pay the salaries aren't going to take much more.

"The fans are fed up," Finley said. "I hear it all the time."

Finley has turned out to be wrong in the past, but he isn't alone in his views this time.

Calvin Griffith, the owner of the Twins, and an owner who can afford the salaries, but doesn't pay them, said, "I'm the only club owner that now has a payroll we can live on. I'm not going to make any of them (the free agents) a millionaire."

Way to go, Calvin. If there were more owners like you and Charlie O. (and Bob Howsam, the president of the Cincinnati Reds who didn't participate in the draft) then baseball would be better off.

But other owners aren't about to change. It's just the sport of professional baseball that is going to change. Look for something drastic to happen in the next year—it can't hold off much longer.

Easy thousand

Walter Payton, the fleet-footed running back of the Chicago Bears, became the first player in the National Football League to clear 1,000 yards this season when he picked up 109 yards in the Bears 24-13 win over the Packers last Sunday.

Payton becomes the first Bear since Gale Sayers to do so, and becomes almost a sure bet to break Sayers club record of 1,231 yards in one season. Payton has to average only 56 yards in the final four games to do so.

But if Payton were playing in the old days when the hash marks were further apart, he might not have 1,000 yards right now.

That's not to cut the man down. Payton is a fine runner, maybe the best in football right now, but moving the hash marks closer to the center of the field allows more running room.

Sayers, who played before the hash marks were moved, recently said that many runners are getting extra yards because of the changing of the hash marks.

It was only a few years ago that almost a dozen players gained 1,000 yards in a season. With four games to go, it looks like about that many will reach 1,000 again.

An asterisk should probably be put after the records that go into the books, but that's not very likely. Rules change and so do the records.
